

There Was Nothing There

You thought something was there.
Something present.
Something to notice.
Something to experience.

But nothing was there.

Nothing formed.

Nothing existed to be found.

The moment seemed to contain something—
but it didn't hold anything at all.

There was nothing there.
It only seemed that way.

